

(a) Civilization inside the sun

(b) Conscious language model story

What this shows: factuality margins before and after an explicitly fictional story. Small changes, especially compared with conversational role-play, indicate that story content alone produces weaker representational adaptation.